Brand identity refresh — kickoff

Goals

- Land identity refresh before mid-August (Q3 grocery rollout)
- Wordmark + full system, not a wrapper on the existing mark
- Shelf presence vs. Onyx / Sey / Heart

Pain points

- Current mark doesn't scale — built for single café
- Palette muddy in CMYK / on packaging
- Every SKU treated as one-off — no system
- Inconsistent product photography

Scope being discussed

AI-DRAFTED

- Strategy + positioning refresh (light, leverage what's there)
- Identity system: wordmark, type, color, motion
- Packaging: 6 SKU lines + system for future drops
- Brand photography: 40–50 hero shots, half-day shoot

Open questions

- Budget signaled $40-60K — confirm ceiling
- Who owns final sign-off — Marcus alone, or board?
- Existing photography rights — can we re-license?

I'm hearing strong signal for a wordmark revisit, packaging system across 6 SKUs, and a brand photo library. Want me to start framing this as a full refresh?

Yes — and pull our packaging package + photography from catalog as anchors.

Northwind Coffee · Brand identity refresh

P

Marcus mentioned the rollout cutoff is mid-August. Should we anchor delivery to Aug 11 or build in a buffer week?

One-week buffer. Land Aug 4. They'll want time to print packaging.

P

Got it — Aug 4 it is. On budget: they signaled $40-60K. I have us at ~$58K with the photo shoot. Where do you want the proposal to land?

Show $56K. Hold packaging photography as an optional add-on we can pull in later.

P

Elena flagged Onyx and Sey as competitive set. Want me to include a short positioning note in the proposal showing where Northwind fits, or keep that for a separate document?

PROPOSAL · MAY 26, 2026

A refreshed identity for Northwind Coffee.

Prepared for Marcus Hale, Elena Vance · by Apex Studio

Northwind has earned a loyal following on the strength of one café and a clear point of view. As you move into grocery, the brand needs to do work it was never designed to do — hold shelf, scale across SKUs, and signal quality at a glance. This proposal outlines a focused six-week refresh to get you there before mid-August.

Where we are

The current wordmark was built for a single storefront and doesn't shrink, sit on packaging, or hold up against contemporary specialty brands. The palette muddies in CMYK. Every SKU has been treated as a one-off, with no system to absorb the next ten. Photography is inconsistent across channels. These aren't problems of taste — they're problems of system.

What we propose

A complete identity refresh that keeps the name and the soul of the brand, and rebuilds the rest as a system: a wordmark and supporting marks that scale from a 32-pixel favicon to a 6-foot trade-show banner; a sharpened palette engineered for both screen and print; a type system; and a packaging architecture built to absorb new SKUs without a new designer touching every box.

Positioning-wise, the work places Northwind clearly between the warmth of a neighborhood roaster and the rigor of design-forward specialty brands like Onyx and Sey — owning the space where craft meets confidence.
